Final Chapter Written In Valentine Cafe Slaying Of Last Christmas Eve

The final chapter in the pro-Christmas slaying of Mrs. Lillie Valentine last year was written here and at LaGrange Penitentiary yesterday when the two youths convicted of her slaying were imprisoned.

The youths, Curt Colwell, and Elmer Kilburn, were still contending their innocence. They told County Sheriff Paul Amis and Deputy Sheriff Jeff Miller they had been convicted of a crime they did not commit.

Three-Day Trial

A jury which heard the evidence for three days in June thought otherwise. The panel found them guilty of the slaying and recommended the life sentence which the Court eventually passed down upon the youth.

They will both be eligible for parole in seven years.

Sheriff Amis said neither had much to say about the trial as they drove to LaGrange yesterday. Only recently, the Kentucky Court of Appeals had affirmed the decision of the Perry Circuit Court, thereby closing all but two avenues of appeal—a petition for a rehearing before the Kentucky Court of Appeals—and the United States Supreme Court.

Damaging Testimony

Amis said Colwell and Kilburn made occasional reference to the testimony of Paul Napier, Mrs. Valentine's son-in-law, and Frankie Valentine, her daughter. The two testified at the trial that they saw Colwell stading in front of the Valentine tavern moments before the 5 p.m. Sunday afternoon shotgun slaying and "he had a gun in his hand."

Probably more so than any other witnesses, it was the testimony of Napier and Miss Valentine that swayed the jury to a conviction. Napier was severely injured in the same shooting, spent months in a veteran's hospital, and when he appeared at the trial was but a 135 pound, physical wreck of a man who had once weighed 185 pounds. Miss Valentine had fled to Ohio in fear for her life and was a surprise witness for Commonwealth Attorney Talbott Combs.

The trial had one odd sidelight—the confession, refuted during the trial, of Aaron Thomas, a prisoner at LaGrange. Thomas, months before the trial, told Warden Gordon Gray at LaGrange that he had killed Mrs. Valentine.

Testimony Reported

Under questioning by Combs, he refuted the testimony at the trial, telling the court that he had confessed of he slaying because a fellow inmate a LaGrange had told him his son would be killed if he didn't.

A dramatic trial, a tragic ending for two thrill-happy youths, almost a year to the day of the Christmas slaying.

Rowdy Man Dies Of Heart Attack

Mr. Ed Young, of Rowdy, died suddenly at the Mt. Mary Hospital of a heart attack. Mr. Young was 60 years old and was last employed by Kentucky Sun Coal Co., as a mine foreman.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

The Maggard Funeral Home will be in charge.

1957 Tax Bills To Be Collected

1957 delinquent tax bills will be turned over to G. C. Wilson, delinquent tax collector, for collection on Jan. 2 City Manager Hobert Wooten announced today.

Wooten advised that persons who are delinquent on their 1957 tax bills pay them immediately, and thereby avoid a minimum of at least 10 percent penalty.

1959 Garbage Tags

Garbage tags for January through June, 1959, are now on sale at City Hall, City Manager Hobert Wooten reminded the public today.

Perkins, Fugate Get Honor Awards

Randall Perkins, a 165-pound guard for M. C. Napier last year, was named the recipient of the Grant Combs Memorial award during the school's annual football banquet held last night at the cafeteria.

Named recipient of the "Most Valuable Player" award was the Navajo's hulking, 195 pound fullback, Kidd Fugate. Both awards were presented to the players last night by Roy Napier, president, M. C. Napier Booster's Club.

Fugate, a two letterman, and Perkins, were named co-captains of the Navajos for the 1959 season.

Principal speaker for the banquet was Roy G. Eversole, Superintendent, Hazard City Schools. Eversole spoke on the importance of football as a builder of character.

Entertainment included a pantomime by Patty Cody, and singing by Elmer Begley.

Board To Hold Call Meeting

The possibility of getting State aid for repair of Hazard streets will be discussed tonight during a special call meeting of the Hazard Board of Commissioners.

The Board will also discuss the need for repairs to City Hall.

P.O. To Stay Open

The Hazard Post Office will open Saturday until 5 p.m. Mrs. Allie Gorman, acting postmaster, announced today.

Court Orders Treasurer To Pay Squire's Salaries

Circuit Court Judge Courtney C. Wells yesterday ordered Perry County Treasurer Bill Wooten to sign county checks for magistrate's salaries, thereby breaking a deadlock between the treasury and Fiscal Court which has existed here for the past 11 months.

The suit was filed here, Monday, by the county magistrates. None have been paid their $200 per month salaries since they took office in January.

Payment of salaries was withheld by Wooten because he had been advised by the Attorney General's Office in Frankfort that he might be personally liable for the money.

Clouded by Courts

The question of magistrates' salaries throughout Kentucky has been clouded ever since a court decision last year kicked out the fee system.

The problem of magistrates' salaries was further complicated when a suit was filed in Muhlenberger County in May contesting a law passed by the Kentucky legislature the previous month.

The law set a maximum of $200 per month as the salary for magistrates in counties with populations of less than 250,000 and imposed the duty of trying criminal cases on the magistrates. Previously, magistrates had been confined to hearing traffic violations, and received a fee from each conviction.

Magistrates Approve Salaries

The maximum $200 per month was approved here by the magistrates when they included it in the June budget. An amendment passed then to withhold payment until the Court of Appeals ruled on the legality of the law was later withdrawn by Fiscal Court to allow the magistrates to be paid.

The suit here yesterday didn't raise the constitutionality of the law. In his arguments, Attorney Sam Ward pointed out to the Court that the law is now in effect and provides for the payment of the salaries.

County Attorney C. A. Noble, who defended Wooten, said today he is forwarding a complete transcript of yesterday's hearing to the Attorney General's office before deciding on whether to appeal Judge Wells' ruling.

Wooten has 30 days to make his appeal.

Christmas Service

Hazard Commandry No. 47 Knights Templar will conduct a Christmas service at the Masonic Hall in Hazard, Christmas morning, starting at 10:00 a.m.

Santa Claus

WKIC To Hold Fund Program for County Needy

Wanna hear a special request for get Grandpappy to stand on his head—or have the secretary of the Kentucky River Mining Institute play his juke harp.

The opportunity will be yours over WKIC's annual benefit program for the needy families of Perry County this Sunday afternoon at 3 p.m.

Whatever your request, the station will try its best to oblige during the two hour program—provided you keep the kitty crawling with a donation for the needy.

Money raised through the program will be turned over to the Hazard Junior Chamber of Commerce. Jaycees this year are sponsoring the Christmas basket program in Perry County.

Sunday's program will feature local talent, including the Hazard High School band, and performances by local music, voice and piano students.

Fun-loving, joke-popping Grandpappy will be the master of ceremonies.

Donation phoned in the station will be collected by members of the Beta Sigma Phi sorority who will be patrolling the town and county.

Jaycees reported today that collections at the Main Street both are running far behind what is needed to insure a "Merry Christmas" for the county's needy families.

Glenn Combs, club president, urged all city and county residents to listen to the WKIC program, Sunday afternoon, and make their contributions then.

Holiday Garbage To Be Shifted

No garbage collections will be made Christmas Day, City Manager Hobert Wooten announced today.

Want 'Ta Advertise?

Herald

The annual Christmas edition of the Hazard Herald will be published Monday, Dec. 22. A limited staff prevents the Herald from calling on all advertisers who may want to wish the public a "Merry Christmas" with a Christmas greeting ad in the Herald. Businesses we fail to contact, but desire an ad, are requested to phone the Herald by 12 noon, Saturday. Thank you and Merry Christmas!

Cooper Asks Government To Study Region's Economy

Representatives of the Agriculture Department and the Red Cross will move into Eastern Kentucky to study what can be done to help needy families there.

Senator John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky issued the announcement Tuesday after a conference with General Alfred M. Gruenther, Red Cross president, and True Morse, undersecretary of agriculture.

Red Cross, Governor To Meet

Cooper said the Red Cross will send a representative to the coal-mining areas. After a survey, he will meet with Governor Chandler. Red Cross workers also will meet in Lexington with the Harlan County Assistance Committee—a group of businessmen who are attempting to help that stricken area.

A Red Cross spokesman emphasized its representative will be strictly on a survey mission. He said the Red Cross can give relief aid only in event of disasters resulting from turbulence such as floods and storms, not in event of economic crisis.)

Mining Inactivity Hurts

A decrease in mining activity and the fact many workers exhausted unemployment benefits brought impoverishment to hundreds of families.

Cooper said other areas feeling the economic pinch include Bell, Letcher, Leslie, and Perry counties.

Annual Xmas Party Held Monday Night

G. S. Ritchie
Mr. and Mrs. Harold Saltee and family of Lost Creek, Ky., visited her sister, Mrs. Kelly Cope, Mr. Cope and Sharon over the week end. While here they attended the Breathitt-Hazard Basketball game. According to Mrs. Saltee, this is the first time she has gone back home not disappointed in a ball game.

Mae Byrd Rebekah Lodge held its annual Christmas Party Monday night. A delicious supper of Ham, Shucky Beans, Candied Sweet Potatoes, Potato Salad, Cole Slaw, Cake and Jello was served to: Glenn Sue Ritchie, Mary Ritchie, Rachel Ritchie, Alene Begley, Castoria Delaney, Maude McQuerry, Emma Caudill, Mildred Stacy, Ida Lee Begley, Emma Jewell Smith, and Zebadiah Begley. Gifts were exchanged and Mr. Begley was presented a cigarette lighter for the endless work he has done for the lodge.

Both Peno and Mary Alice Castagnaro are confined to their home due to illness. Mary Alice has had bronchial pneumonia and had to miss several days of school and Peno has the flu.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Hanlon of Walkertown visited the Bruce Kelly family, Sunday.

Mrs. Rhoda White has returned home after visiting her daughter at Leatherwood. To Waldo "Do" Bolin, who is still a patient at Christ Hospital in Jersey City, New Jersey—From all your friends and neighbors at Hardburly, "Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year!"

Rev. Raymond E. Haddix of Heiner was guest speaker at Hardburly Community Church, Sunday.

Enoch Combs sent to his daughter today a nice big package for Christmas. Enoch informed me she wouldn't be here for Christmas, so he sent it to her. Contents of the package, Shucky Beans.

TRUTH-AD FOR THE UNCHURCHED

BY WINN T. BARR
"Work out your own salvation with fear and trembling"? Why, of course. When we commit ourselves to Christ, God puts a new nature in us that impels us to work for Him. It will be working out all the rest of our lives, after it is put in by faith! The next verse says, "For it is God which worketh in you both to will and to do of His good pleasure."

Ephesians 2:8-10 shows us the exact relation of works to salvation: It is not of works, but unto works. How can one be, leave it is by works, when the Scripture plainly says it is unto works? Faith works. The start is an attitude of repenting faith. It produces works, but itself does not partake of the nature of works.

The good NEWS belongs to the NEWSpaper, but LOOK in the BOOK it comes from, and SEARCH for the CHURCH that obeys that book most fully.

View That Satisfies All The Scriptures:

1. Conversion (repentance, faith, and calling on the Lord) brings eternal life, (a righteous standing, nature, and destiny).
 2. Eternal life brings good works, (of which baptism is only one among many).
 3. Works bring rewards at Christ's return (according to their number and degree of love).
- Look for a TRUTH-AD every Thursday.

KPC Appoints Public Relations Director

J. A. Palmer
Kentucky Power Company today announced the appointment effective January 1 of J. A. Palmer to the new position of director of public relations and advertising. Mr. Palmer will be moving to Ashland from New York City where he is public relations assistant for American Electric Power, parent company of Kentucky Power.

F. M. Baker, vice president and general manager of Kentucky Power, in making the announcement said, "Mr. Palmer in filling this new position will give additional direction and coordination to our efforts in behalf of customer service and the public in our service area."

A native of Roanoke, Va., Mr. Palmer has been in the public relations department on the AEP System for over eight years. He started July 1950 with Kentucky Power's sister company, Appalachian Power, in Roanoke as feature writer on the employee publication, "The Illuminator," which also serves Kentucky Power. He was promoted to assistant editor in 1953 and to editor in 1955. He moved to AEP System headquarters in New York in June 1957.

A 1950 graduate of Washington and Lee University where he was Phi Beta Kappa and holder of the Lee Memorial Scholarship presented by the United Daughters of the Confederacy, he was news editor of the "Franklin News-Post" of Rocky Mount, Va., for five months prior to joining Appalachian Power. He is a World War II veteran, having served with the 567th AAA Bn. in the European Theatre of Operations.

Activity in civic work has included serving as an officer with the Boy Scouts, Junior Chamber of Commerce and Mental Health Society.

Good Deeds Sometime Forgotten

John Smedley
Don Beams of the Beams Electric Co., has returned from Corbin, where he spent the past weekend on business.

Our businessmen, of Hazard, never sit still. In the boat they are always reaching farther out for more and bigger business.

Heroic deeds are sometimes buried and forgotten, for instance some few years ago, when the Fourseam Coal Company, was in operation, Price Finley, Taxi Cab Driver for Igo Taxi Company at that time had worked late and was returning home at 1 a.m. one morning.

While passing the tippie he discovered it was on fire. So Price did a fast Paul Revere, on foot notifying the officials then helped to put out the fire, thus saving a hundred thousand dollar tippie, plus months of lost time for the employees.

You know if Price could get a letter from "Old Santa," reading better late than never, we are sending this one hundred dollar war bond, in remembrance of your heroic act, in helping to save our tippie. In this manner, we won't have to twist your arm to get you to take this reward.

Hindman Citizen Is Called by Death

Mose Miller passed away, Dec. 4, at his home in Hindman. Mr. Miller had a light stroke about three years ago while visiting his daughter in Florida. Since then he has been unable to work, but has been able to go to church and visit among his friends.

Mr. Miller was taken ill again Nov. 23, and took his bed Thanksgiving night.

He is survived by his wife, Dicie Hayes Miller, four sons, Eljije and Luther of Red Fox, Cassell of Sasafra, and Roy of Hazard. Three daughters, Nora Smith of Fruitland, and Mrs. Edd Compton, Hindman. He is also survived by a brother, who was unable to attend.

Funeral services were held, Dec. 6, in the Hindman court house with Rev. Tommie Collier and Kirby Ison of Letcher Co.

The body was then taken to the Hayes Cemetery with the Masons in charge.

Mr. Miller was born, June 23, 1881 in Letcher county and came to Hindman at the age of 18.

Job Opportunities Announced by Henninger

Job opportunities in the field of sanitation are good now, John H. Henninger, Merit System Officer for the Kentucky State Department of Health, has announced. There are several openings in the State at the present time, and more positions will be available within the next six months.

The sanitarian, a vital member of the local health department team, inspects public premises such as hotels, motels, schools, industrial plants, restaurants, and food handling establishments. He exercises sanitation supervision in food manufacturing plants. He makes sanitary inspections and surveys of water supplies and sewage disposal systems. He conducts mosquito, fly, and rodent control programs. Inspections of dairies, cream stations, and ice cream plants, as well as pasteurization plants, and the promotion of public health education through community organization are also his duties.

Applicants for sanitarian positions must be college graduates with training in biological or physical sciences.

The beginning salary is $3,600 per year, plus mileage. A car is necessary.

Application forms may be obtained from the Merit System Office, 620 South Third Street, Louisville 2, Kentucky, or from any county health department. Completed forms must be returned to the Merit System Office. Examination dates will be announced later.

Bible Verse

Therefore if thou bring thy gift to the altar, and there rememberest that thy brother hath ought against thee: Leave there thy gift before the altar, and go thy way: First be reconciled to thy brother, and then come and offer thy gift. St. Matthew, 5:23, 24.

Marine veteran tells how to fight a losing battle on the "home" front ...and still win!

Mr. Garland shows Richard and Sidney a Japanese flag he brought home.

"The clothes were dirty. The sink was full of dirty dishes. The house was a mess. I had a big wash to do, but it was raining. I was in a tight spot..."

Sounds like a panic-stricken housewife, doesn't it? But no—the above laments are those of insurance man Sidney Garland, husband, father and Silver Star winner for gallantry in action during World War II.

Mr. Garland explains:

"When Jan (Mrs. Garland) was in the hospital having Richard, young Sidney and I 'batched', and I found out what a housewife goes through each day. By the time Jan was ready to bring the baby home, I was convinced she should have an electric clothes dryer.

"That dryer was the beginning of a better way of life for us. Like our water heater, range and other electric appliances, it saves us much time, trouble and worry... lets us spend more time together. I may have lost the battle against those household chores, but I figure the whole family won a lot of extra comfort and convenience... that week when I first realized how necessary electric appliances really are."

Mrs. Garland says, "The real hero of my husband's story is Reddy Kilowatt. He is certainly a big help to me when it comes to taking care of the family wash and preparing meals."

Traipisin Troublesome

by Corinne Clarke

A woman recently told me that she just didn't know what to think about her baby book as it read that a feller over age 40, would not take the mumps; and her man will be forty-two come spring and he looks like a fat chip-monk all swelled up with the mumps; and can't eat a thing. It pays a feller to have his childish ailments in his youth and said, "Lord-a-Mercy," don't tell me he has mumps 'cause I ain't had them either, and I was with him the other night. That feller is over forty too; but ain't took them yet.

A man recently told me he thought as how his young son, a teen-ager was taking a moonlight walk to snitch a little puff. He didn't know whether it best to invite the son to stay put by the fireside and light up with Dad or to let him continue his nightly walks and let "Mum" be the word for the Ole Folk. Dad decided the weather being so cold, the son would smoke less if not invited to 'fess up and light-up.

Smoke is just air gone crazy with the heat, so Dad is figuring right; there will be less hot air and nothing is better for a chap than to take a walk in the moonlight.

A lady recently told me that Love is a many splendored thing and that her man is getting her a tub and board for Xmas, so the family would not starve to death.

Menefee's Rise Is Cut Short By His Death

Charles F. Hnds

One of the most valued of several portraits which hang in the Old State House is Oliver Frazer's "Richard Hickman Menefee." It was presented in 1919 to Gov. Augustus Owensley Stanley for the Kentucky Historical Society by Mrs. Charles B. Scott, a niece of Menefee. This portrait was copied at least twice in the 19th century from the original, one of which was hanging in the Fayette County Courthouse when it burned in 1897. The other is reported to be in the Menefee Courthouse at Owingsville.

Richard Hickman Menefee, after whom Menefee County received its name (though in misspelled form) was, perhaps, one of Kentucky's most promising young sons when life was cut short for him at the age of 31.

He was born near Owingsville in 1809, the year of the birth of another prominent native son, Abraham Lincoln. Unlike Lincoln, however, Menefee received an excellent formal education, graduating from Transylvania University Law School in 1832. One of Menefee's 11 classmates was George W. Johnson, later the first Confederate governor of Kentucky. In the year of his graduation, Menefee took for his wife, Sarah Bell Jouett, the second child of Matthew Jouett, Kentucky's most distinguished painter.

Menefee's rise was meteoric. The year following his graduation and marriage, he was appointed commonwealth's attorney for the 11th Judicial District. He served with distinction in the Kentucky Legislature in 1836-37. As a member of an education committee of four, he helped to initiate legislation which inaugurated in 1838 the common school system of Kentucky.

Hazard Glee Club Presents Program; Christmas Music Features At P.T.A.

Twelve members of the Hazard High School Glee Club, presented a program of Christmas music at the regular monthly meeting of the Lothair P.T.A., Monday night, Dec. 15. The program was under the direction of Mrs. J. C. Britton, Music Teacher for Hazard City Schools. The devotional was given by Mr. Colwell, principal. A short business session was held after the program with Mrs. Glenn Cornett's room winning the attendance banner.

COUNTY AGENT'S NOTES

Winter Care of Newly Set Plants

Paul Keen, County Agricultural Extension Agent
John Caudill, Associate County Extension Agent

We recently received a book titled "Contemporary Farmhouses Flexiplan" published by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. This book has a total of 576 house plan combinations and other worthwhile information on home construction. We would be very glad to go over the plans with anyone interested in building. House plans may also be ordered from the University of Kentucky Extension Service at very low cost. These are excellent plans and will save much expense. We believe that it is a very serious mistake to build without a plan or one that has been hastily drawn.

Winter Cover on Land
Vegetation left on top of the ground acts as an insulator during winter—and will help your spring plowing problems.

This cover will prevent freezing and thawing in the top few inches of ground; then, the ground will work up much more easily and be less cloddy in the spring. Alternate freezing and thawing breaks up soil granules, then lets them form a tight mass. Cattle-trampling increases the packing action. Cloddiness is a result.

Leave a good growth on pasture land by restricting or eliminating grazing; if pasture is short, much it with manure or waste straw. Bare land should be mulched with manure and, if it is a corn field, disk down the old stalks. If the field was in winter grain that was late, spread manure on it.

Winter Care of Plants
Homeowners who have made plantings of trees, shrubs, and evergreens this fall should be sure to give them special care during winter according to N. R. Elliott, Professor of Landscape Horticulture. These young plants have just been transplanted into a new location and that means the growing habits of the plants have been changed and the plant is in a state of shock. Some of the roots have been lost, even though the plant was moved with a ball of earth, and that is always serious for a plant. Perhaps the top has been sheared or pruned making other wounds for the plant to heal. Also the plants have been set away from the more or less sheltered place where they have been growing and the stems are submitted to the freezing winds. This adds up to the fact that these young plants need help to get through the winter.

Evergreens are evergreen because they never lose their leaves or needles, and winter winds are blowing through the plants and removing water or moisture all the time. The source of this moisture is from the roots; thus, water must be supplied at least once each month during the entire winter. If these plants are to survive, live. Select a time when the temperature is above freezing and carefully pour 5 to 8 gallons of water slowly around the stem of the plant, allowing it to moisten the soil around the roots. Unless this is done, the evergreens may come out of the winter with one side dead. When this happens, the plant may just as well be dug up and thrown away and another planted. Dying most often occurs on the side next to the house where the rain does not hit because of the house or its eaves. A person should never depend on the rains of winter to keep the evergreen watered but apply additional water to be sure.

Young shade trees will not need watering because they have lost their leaves and are in what is called a "dormant stage." However, the tree tops often sway in the wind, keeping the tree loose in the soil, allowing the air to get to the roots because the soil is not packed around them. The thing to do is to examine the young trees several times during the winter; if the soil is away from the stem, tramp it back firmly against the tree trunk. Much of this can be prevented by anchoring the top of the tree to three stakes evenly spaced around the tree. Run wire around the tree trunk, up among the lower branches, and tie to the stakes. Be sure the wire is wrapped with old burlap, or better still run it through a 15-inch piece of old garden hose to keep it from injuring the bark of the tree. This anchor may be left on the tree for 2 or 3 years or until the roots have become firmly established in the soil.

Shrubs as a rule will not need much winter care unless large ones were set, for the heavy tops have a tendency to sway in the wind. Keep the soil packed around the trunk of the shrubs by stamping several times during the winter. If tobacco stalks are well-rotted manure is available, these may be used as a mulch around the newly set plants and the fertilizer from either material will leach down into the soil during the winter and be good for the plants.

Garner Citizen Dies Of Heart Condition

Mr. Perry Stone, 56, died at his home of a heart condition, Dec. 13.

He was a resident of Garner, at the time of death. He was a member of the U.M.W. lodge, and was a disabled miner by occupation.

He is survived by four sons: Coshel Stone, Vernon Stone, Charles Ray Stone, Colonus Stone, all of Garner; five daughters: Mrs. Angus Stone, Mrs. Duke Gayheart, Mrs. Ernest Gayheart, Miss Dorlene Stone, all of Garner; Mrs. Billy Thomas, Kendelville, Ind.

Funeral services were Tuesday at 10 a.m. at home at Garner with burial in the family cemetery at Garner.

The Hindman Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Christmas Program Planned At Lothair

Mrs. Sam Ferguson

Grandma Fletcher has been ill for several days at her home. Leonard Rice who had a stroke recently is thought to be improving a little.

Mr. and Mrs. John Gabbard are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Pearl Cornett and family in Hamilton, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Barker and son, Joey, Mrs. Florence Campbell and Merrill Campbell of Cincinnati, spent the week end with their families.

Curtis Vires, who is serving in the Army, is visiting his mother, Mrs. Mary Vires and family.

The Stork visited the home of the Rev. Bill Brown's, Dec. 9, leaving a beautiful boy to bless their home. They now have three sons and three daughters.

We certainly do sympathize with Mr. and Mrs. Hobart Pigman of Lothair, who's home was destroyed by fire last week, destroying all of their clothing and furniture. They saved the washing machine. Anyone that has a piece of furniture you don't need or bedding, especially blankets, will surely be appreciated. Mr. Pigman has a truck and will be glad to come to your home and pick up anything in the way of furniture.

A Christmas program will be given at the Community Church in Lothair. The play will be given on Christmas eve.

This cold spell kept a lot of the folk from Sunday School and Church, Sunday, on account of slippery roads.

For today, Dec. 14: Attendance, 29; Collection $3.49.

VIPER

Regular Meeting Of P.T.A. Held

Ivory S. Wooten

The Viper P.T.A. held its regular meeting Thursday night, Dec. 11th.

Several interesting things were discussed and many decisions were made that will further improve the school. Among them were the purchasing of tables and other equipment for the lunch room, plans for installing two water hydrants so that the children will have better drinking facilities, and the purchasing of a record-player and other school room equipment.

Children from Mrs. Ogle Brahear's room gave a very interesting program. Children taking part in it were:

Joyette Riddle, Linda Couch, Mary Strong, Betty Lou Franks, Brenda Shepherd and Charles Wooten.

Twenty-six parents were present and all enjoyed refreshments after the business meeting.

LEATHERWOOD LOCALS

Shower Is Given; Xmas. Rush Is On

C. R. Mooney

A household shower was given to Goldie Chapman, Monday, Dec. 15, at the home of her brother, Lindsey Chapman.

The Christmas rush hit the Leatherwood Post Offices hard, Monday. Just a warning, they say as to what is yet to follow.

Mr. and Mrs. Denzil Whitaker, and Mrs. C. R. Mooney go for their last class in their extension course, given in Hazard by Eastern State teachers before a two week vacation begins.

News is scarce in Sleep at this time, but I think the folks are so frozen during this cold spell that they can't get out to make any news, nor to find out any.

Preparing For Christmas

Seeing all the Christmas trees and Christmas decorations, I would say every one is very busy with preparations for Dec. 25.

Some of the folks, like John Hibbard, didn't get to work Monday, because cars were frozen and wouldn't start in time.

George Riley Ison is making a little extra Christmas money selling Christmas trees.

BAILEY'S PURCHASE SERVICE STATION AND RESTAURANT AT WABACO

Jim Bailey and Pauline Bailey have purchased the property from W. R. Fuller and the Service Station and Restaurant business from J. E. Green at Wabaco, on Highway 15.

This business is the one operated by Mr. and Mrs. Bailey prior to September 6th.

Mr. and Mrs. Bailey have already taken possession of the business and property and wish to invite their many friends to visit them there.

LCD Society Holds Meeting At Bulan

The monthly meeting of the L. C. D. Society was held at the home of Miss Faye Francis in Bulan, Friday night, Dec. 12 with the following members present: Mrs. William R. Nelson, Mrs. John Campbell, Mrs. Cassie Knox, Mrs. Samuel Turner, Mrs. Ralph Napier, Mrs. Julian Fyffe, Mrs. James A. Sinor, Mrs. Harold Sizemore, Mrs. William Blewins and the hostess, Miss Faye Francis.

Door prize was won by Mrs. Ralph Napier. Mrs. Samuel Turner and Mrs. John Campbell won prizes for games.

The project for the evening was Christmas decorations. Mrs. John Campbell instructed the group in making Christmas glow candles and Mrs. Samuel Turner gave instructions for making Christmas tree ornaments.

Delicious refreshments were served by Miss Francis. Gifts were exchanged. Two small guests were in attendance, Misses Brenda Fyffe and Donna Lee Campbell. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Julian Fyffe. Mrs. Juanita Morgan, chairman, was unable to attend due to the illness of her son.

...thru the knot-hole

W. P. MORTON

P. T. Barnum is supposed to be the fellow who recommended that you "never give a sucker an even break." The only trouble is that I don't think I'd know a real, dyed-in-the-wool sucker if he jumped in my lap whistling "Dixie." What's a sucker supposed to look like? Take your absent-minded professor, for instance. As far as he's concerned his car might be moving because there's a dozen squirrels on a treadmill under the hood, but he probably knows more about why an I-Bomb does what it does, than anybody in town.

I don't think that there's such a thing as a "complete" sucker, and life's been a lot more pleasant with people since I came to that conclusion. Everybody's a little bit of a sucker in some departments and a real genius in others, so maybe we'd all be better off if we stood back a distance and looked at the whole man instead of just the side of him that strikes us as being funny.

Here at Home Lumber Company we don't consider anyone a sucker. In fact, we don't even like the name. We know all the "ins and outs" of building, repairing, remodeling and the merits of all the different building materials, but we don't know a thing about law for instance, so we go to a lawyer in legal matters.

Everyone to his own business, we always say. So stop in soon and talk over your building, repairing or remodeling problems. You'll be treated with respect and courtesy.

Looking "thru the knot-hole," it looks like one of Home Lumber Company's summertime employees will make All American this year—that's Johnny Cox, our chief green oak stacker every summer.

The Case For Stoplights - Life and Limb Vs. "V.P.H."

There are times when bureaucracy is confusing.

We had figured in our simple mind that this business of obtaining State approval here for three stoplights was merely a formality—an act of rubber stamping. Frankfort would send in the traffic expert. He'd take his surveys—and thereby earn his salary—and the City of Hazard would get the much-needed stoplights.

Apparently, we have mis-figured.

Two Roles of Stoplights

Until the matter of stoplights came before the City Commission this month, we had never given much thought to their importance, society have conditioned us to accept them with resignation—or in our moments of haste with irritation.

Since then, however, our thought processes have arrived at two conclusions as to the purposes of these pesky monitors of the motor age:

1. Traffic signals are safety devices to prevent accidents; and
2. Convenience devices to control the flow of traffic and thereby chill the heat of tempers.

Is it not possible that the State is confusing these two purposes?

City Manager Hobert Wooten told the commission that the State rejected the three traffic signals because a survey taken last year revealed that the number of "vehicle-per-hour" didn't justify the lights being installed at Lovern and the By-Pass, N. Main and the By-Pass, and Maple and East Main.

Life And Limb

We are not questioning the State's figures (they're probably correct). But we do question the importance of "vehicles-per-hour" when life and limb are involved, and especially when children are involved.

We would ask the State if instead of "vehicles-per-hour" a survey shouldn't be taken on "pedestrians per hour." You can't kill a vehicle—only pedestrians and motorists.

Two of the inspections must be crossed by grade and high school students throughout the day as they walk to and from school. Lights are needed at them, Lovern and the By-Pass, and Maple and No. Main, not to control the flow of traffic—but to prevent some student from being run down by a car and maimed for life, or even worse, killed.

YULES, this is the season of the year that many of you will soon be taking to the highways. Yes, going home to visit loved ones that you haven't seen maybe for many months. You are overjoyed to get a chance to see these loved ones again, you will have your car loaded with presents, food and other items to make some one happy on your visit. Many of you will have hunting trips planned on your arrival. Others of you are maybe not going visiting to far off places, but you will no doubt do some driving and visiting among your friends and loved ones that live nearer to you. Regardless of how far or how short your distance is, please drive carefully. Observe the safety rules of everything, not only of driving, or giving a present that could mar the beautiful memory of this Xmas. Many of you will give your children something that could cause you great anxiety and sorrow. If you give gifts to your son, such as AIR RIFLE, TWENTY TWO GUN or ARCHERY SETS or any other gift. First, be sure that he knows how to handle it before you turn him loose with it. Give the proper instruction of safety in items such as these. Let's keep that holiday as it was meant for when you first started out. Don't be grieved with sorrow. DRIVE WITH CARE, DO EVERYTHING WITH A LITTLE EXTRA PRECAUTION at this YULE TIDE. Remember, some needy or unfortunate person or family that you can cheer and help during the season.

GOOD NEIGHBORHOOD

That you are living in, if you can still find the various candidates pictures still tacked up on the telephone poles on your street. I was noticing a few days ago that on my street several of the candidates pictures were still there, some from back in the primary. This sorta gives me a feeling that we had a pretty good bunch running last election. Maybe we are beginning to respect and appreciate our voting privileges more and more. I can recall the days that one candidate would have a group putting up his favorite candidate posters, before they got out of sight, his opponent would have a group following right behind, tearing them down. Yes, maybe we are realizing that we are a free people, who walk in dignity and sleep in peace, and without fear. We are free to worship, each in his own way. We are free to choose our own work. We are free to know the truth and speak our minds about it. We are free to grow, to create each to the utmost of his ability. Let's us enjoy these things at this season of the year, the family reunions, the gatherings with friends, let's us not lose sight of the inspiration and true purpose of the occasion. Let's give thanks for the blessings we have received.

ALL TACKED UP

Story comes to me about one of our good sportsmen, none other than WILL McCARTY, glad to see you up and out again MAC after a siege with the Docs. Mac has always been known for his famous hunting and fishing tales. Mac, I am not quoting any one's name, overheard this little story while you were in the hospital: It seems years ago when Mac was a chunk of a boy, they used the old muzzle loading guns. This particular day a great hord of black birds lit in a tree in Mac's yard in Bourbon County. Mac rushes into the house to get the old muzzle loader, he finds he has no shot, he spies a box of carpet tacks of his mother's, which he dumps into the old gun. He runs back in the yard and lets both barrels go, several of the black birds fly away, but none falls to the ground. Mac hears this swishing of wings and looks up, there he had tacked over a hundred birds to this big oak. Of course Mac got them down for a bird pie supper. Yes Sir, I have eaten them.

GOOD TO HEAR

Many of you that have been ill and in Hospitals, glad to learn that many of you are up and going again, among these I have heard from recently is, H. E. Greer, Russel Baugh, D. H. Goodlette, Charlie Johnson. Here's wishing all of you sick and shut ins a speedy recovery. It sure changes your plans when these things over take us. But we must go just the same, making the very best of it as possible.

BEEN NICE

Seeing and hearing from so many of you since I have about half way got back in the saddle again. Rusty Fritts who recently paid us a visit from over Tennessee way, where he was transferred by WATSONS, Rusty says he likes it over there. But I could tell he enjoyed coming back. Also to you Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Holiday of Hamilton, Ohio. Thanks for the invitation to come up your way. I know I will be welcome, because you didn't how haw around the bush when you folks said it. Thanks W. B. Cox for your kind remarks in regard to this column. Folks here is a proud daddy, why shouldn't he be the father of Johnny Cox at U.K. Yea he made 27 points against St. Louis. A good piece of our mountain talent who is letting the world know that we have it up here in these hills. Thanks to you Mrs. J. D. Marsee, always recall those cold rainy days when I would stop in your alls store and warm my feet while on the mail beat.

JUST REMEMBER

The rules that have been set up for your own safety during the next few weeks, drive carefully, shoot carefully, indulge carefully. Lets be careful REMEMBER THE LIFE YOU SAVE COULD BE OUR OWN. You boys going into the fields remember your wildlife friends through the cold and snowy weather, take some food along in your hunting coat scatter it a round your favorite areas. Bad weather can mean the difference of a good hunt next season.

ON SALE

Folks the 1959 Fishing and Hunting License are now on sale, they will make a nice gift for that outdoor person on your list. Not only that you will be helping your State Dept. of Fish and Wildlife Resources to get off to a good start for next year. Remember this is the only revenue it receives for your assurance of a good program. While this is on your mind, don't forget to join your local fish and game clubs for 1959. Why not become a part of the things that you enjoy of Gods great outdoors.

Uncle Sam Talks Gasoline Tax Increase

The federal government's expected move to saddle more tax on the consumer's gasoline purchases is certain to meet stiff opposition. It is, in fact, meeting opposition already.

A number of the public prints in this country are discussing the subject editorially, both Big Prints and little prints, and most of them are taking the side of the downtrodden motorist, who is saddled already with about all the taxes the traffic will bear.

We Pay 10c Tax A Gallon

Today the Kentucky car owner is paying ten cents a gallon in taxes, which means that a third or more of his gasoline money is for tax and not for octane to power his vehicle. Of this big tax—and big tax it is, on a percentage basis and also on a dollar and cents basis—seven cents goes to the state and three cents to the federal government. The ten cents is the usual total rate, though it varies in some of the states.

Two years ago motorists in some of the states—Florida, for instance—were loaded with an extra penny a gallon to build interstate highways, and at the time the gasoline buyer was told the penny would be enough. Kentuckians were not saddled with an extra gas tax to pay the cost of roads built under the vast federal-state program now under way, but they saddled themselves with a $100,000,000 bond issue instead. This they did voluntarily, by referendum.

"Just Another Penny"

Anyway, it turns up now that the federal government will soon be back asking for another penny or two to carry on the road building job. The probability is that two cents will be asked, and if imposed it would raise Kentucky's gasoline tax to 12 cents a gallon and that of other states to about as much.

Now building roads is fine, and the public is all for it, otherwise they would not have voted, as we Kentuckians did, to incur a vast debt of $100,000,000 for the purpose of improving our state's road system. There is a limit, however, to the amount of money which can be collected from the motorist—or at least there ought to be a limit.

A sad fact, is the scandal of highway money diversion, which means that money extracted from the pockets of the people for road purposes is used for something else. It is a national scandal, this diversion of funds, and among other things it is dishonest—a species of dishonesty which government would not tolerate for an instance if it were practiced by a taxpayer. Too much of the tax money is being used in some states for purposes other than highway building and maintenance, and in some places—Tennessee for example—a fight is being staged today on the practice.

"Car Is Necessity"

Millions of people all over the country think it is about time governments recognize the fact that the automobile is a necessity and no longer a luxury, as was once the case. Is no greater necessity in our economic scheme than the car and the truck. And yet the tax on gasoline is now three or four times as much as the tax on some luxury items.

So a fight is needed against the sly idea that a penny more tax on gasoline, or a couple of pennies, won't hurt anybody. The fact is that an extra penny or two on gas will hurt everybody, further upsetting family budgets stretched already to the limit.

Behind The Times: American Businessmen

Too many American businessmen have long considered themselves to be above and remote from politics. But now, it's good to report there is a strong shift away from this head-in-the-sand attitude. More and more business leaders, speaking as individuals and on behalf of organizations, are pointing out that political business is everybody's business.

A top official of Continental Oil Company provides a good example. He says that the American businessman must wake up to the threat of the growing political power and public sentiment being marshalled against him and participate in a public-spirited and constructive manner in politics and government affairs—or he will soon be out of business and the ward of socialist government. "Businessmen," he added, "have lost their influence in political affairs because they have been apathetic... and have lagged woefully behind the times in appreciating and understanding the changes taking place in the world around them."

He offered six suggestions whereby businessmen can take an active part in formulating and guiding national policy: keep informed about public affairs; take a stand on important issues; support and co-operate with the Government; participate personally in politics; encourage political activities by your employees; and, do some constructive thinking.

We can have truly representative government only if all the groups and forces concerned make their views known, and support them with all legitimate tools at their command.

Something We Asked For: Confusion In Berlin

The US, Britain and France are reported as determined to take whatever steps may be necessary to prevent Red control of West Berlin. That these steps may be expensive and even agonizing is a reasonable anticipation. But just how they may be taken remains a deep, dark secret at this writing.

It would seem to be the Kremlin's plan—on the heels of Krushchev's announcement that he would liquidate the "occupation status of Berlin"—to appear to withdraw from East Berlin, if not from East Germany, and hand over to East German stooges control over the highway, railway and air approaches to West Berlin.

If we were to believe Krushchev's bluster, the plan would be simply for the East Germans—operating under their own steam—to shut off all access to the Western city, drive out both the Allied occupation forces and the West Germans in order to make this fabulously booming city a literal part of the comparative desert that is East Germany. But this is a large order when it is considered that there is nothing the East Berliners and the East Germans at large desire more than reunion with their Western kinsmen, freedom from Soviet slavery and acceptance by the Bonn government as part of the (West) German Federal Republic.

It would seem obvious, therefore, that whatever restraints are imposed and whatever hostile moves made against the Allies and the official regime of West Berlin must be under the direction of Russian wolves in East German sheep's clothing. And the main purpose may well be to force the US, Britain and France to deal with the East German government in the matter of traffic arrangements and controls in and out of West Berlin. Since the three Western powers have consistently refused to recognize East Germany, on the grounds that it is not a representative country but an irresponsible Red satellite, such traffic conferences would constitute some degree of recognition.

The West is now awaiting, therefore, the replacement of Russians at the rail and highway checkpoints by East Germans and the threatened blockade that would most certainly launch another and vastly greater Berlin air lift—along with the concomitant peril of incidents that could mean war.

And these, after all, are the chickens of our strategic ineptitude coming home to roost—13 years after halting our victorious troops at the Elbe so that the Russians (whom we then distrusted) might march with us into Berlin, divide this historic city against itself and impose for a hundred miles around a new slavery on millions, freed only then from the Hitler tyranny.

Prize-Winning Photo, "Sad Lad", Has Won Fame For Photographer

Gurney Norman

One of Hazard's favorite sons, photographer Hal Cooner, who has sent his and the city's name south of the border and across the Atlantic with his fine photography, owes at least some of his renown to his photogenic son, Barry.

"This is not to disparage Hal's talent by any means, but it was a picture of Barry taken seven years ago that is his pride achievement, the picture that has earned for Hal the recognition of fellow professional photographers all over this and several foreign countries.

Exhibited Inter-Nationally

The portrait, a quiet, deep reflection of a very disappointed little seven-year-old lad, has been exhibited at the Mexico City Palace of Art, at the International Exhibition of Photographic Art in Bath, England, and at the Second International Exhibition of Photographic Art in Helsinki, Finland, as well as at seven exhibits in the U.S.A.

Immediately after printing the picture, Hal saw that it was good of his son, but that was as far as his admiration went at the time, and he merely thumb-tacked it to the wall in his office, where it remained for almost two years.

Then one day he was looking around hurriedly for a portrait to enter at the last minute in an exhibition, when his eyes fell upon Barry's picture on the wall. It was entered, and recognized immediately as an excellent, artistic work for its fine lines and superior photographic technique employed in the making.

Psychology Important

Psychology played an important part in the achieving of the dramatic expression on Barry's face in the prize-winning portrait, as it does anytime the attainment of artistic heights is the motive of a portrait.

Hal said he talked very quietly to his son, and described to him in hollow tones the terrible, terrible situation Barry was in, how his parents didn't love him and how the whole world just did not like him a bit. When Barry's falling humor brought the mood and facial expression Hal had in mind, he clicked the camera and the result was nothing short of creative.

Son Barry is now 14 and a cadet at Castle Heights Military Academy in Tennessee.

Became Serious In Army

Hal has tinkered with cameras since he was big enough to hold one, but it was while serving with the U.S. Army in World War II that he became a serious student. His Army tasks included a wide range of assignments, including duty as a combat photographer. While in France, he bartered Army film, a very scarce commodity on the civilian market, for camera instructions from a French civilian who was especially good at and interested in artistic photography.

More than a dozen fine portraits line the wall of the Hal Cooner Studio, all having won the recognition of his fellow photographers. But the picture of his tearful son still holds first place in his admiration.

PRIZE WINNER — "SAD LAD"

9 Ky. Men Serve In Lebanon

More than 9 Kentucky men with the US Air Force participated in the recent 322nd Air Division airlift of the 24th Infantry Division from Beirut, Lebanon to their Army posts in the Augsburg-Munich area of southern Germany.

Return of combat equipped troops was accomplished in a round-the-clock airlift by a fleet of transports from the 322nd. Hercules C-130 turboprops of the 39th, 40th and 41st Troop Carrier Squadrons based at Evreux-Fauville Air Base near Paris, France handled the bulk of the mass airlift.

A special air task force which included many of these same Evreux air and ground crews helped to rush the paratroopers to the Middle East last July to maintain world peace.

The airlift nicknamed "Operation Histrack" was commanded by Colonel Clyde Box of Nevada, Tex., commander of the 322nd. Also participating were C-124 Globemasters from Rhein-Main Air Base, Germany.

The operation got underway shortly after midnight, Sunday, Oct. 19 and a C-130, the USAF's fastest flying transport, left Beirut on an average of less than every two hours. Fresh air crews flew the loaded Hercules turboprop out of Beirut International Airport to Brindisi, Italy, a refueling point, and on to Furstentfeldbruck Air Base, Germany where the troops and equipment were unloaded. It took them a week to move 1,279 tons of equipment including 2203 troops.

Kentucky aircrew members who made a 2,000 mile flight between Beirut and Furstentfeldbruck include:

Pilot 1st Lt. Charles F. Howard, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Howard, Sr., 210 Wayne St., Highland Park, Monticello.

Navigators 1st Lt. Paul Sandman, son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Sandman, 901 Ormsby Lane, Lyndon; 2nd Lt. Robert L. Highley, a native of Covington.

Flight engineer A-2C Jimmie L. Chaffin, son of Mrs. Stanley G. Chaffin, 1377 High St., Bowling Green.

Loadmasters S/Sgt. Ralph E. Keen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cash Keen, Box 437, Hazard; S/Sgt. Leon Adams, Jr., whose father-in-law, Mr. Dalton Bagwell, resides at 1045 E. Caldwell, Louisville; A-1C Joseph McAnally, son of Mrs. Estelle McAnally.

Thea crew of a C-130 Hercules includes a pilot or aircraft commander, co-pilot, navigator, flight engineer and loadmaster.

The men who have the least glamorous jobs—the 5th Aerial Port Sq. from Dreux air base, France—probably did the hardest work when the 322nd airlifted the 24th Infantry Division out of Lebanon.

Another Kentucky airman, A-2C Owen A. Banton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mervin Banton, Box 203, Allensville, helped load the C-130's and C-124's at Beirut. As soon as the transports moved into the loading areas, the Dreux loadmasters started moving vehicles and equipment into the bellies of the waiting aircraft. Usually, no more than 30 minutes passed between the time the muscle men began lowering the ramp doors of the C-130's by hand until the last chain was secured and the giant, jaw-like doors were closed again. On most occasions, Banton and other loadmasters did their job much quicker.

A miniature combat airlift support unit (CALSU) was set up at Brindisi, Italy, where most of the Hercules C-130's were refueled enroute to Furstentfeldbruck. M-Sgt. Laughlin Rice, son of Mrs. G. S. Johnson, 108 Aspen Ave., Frankfort, was one of three USAF men who operated this CALSU.

Prayer

Our father: Give us the light of thy presence we beseech thee. Be merciful unto us and protect us from all perils and dangers which seem to be a wall around us. May we ever seek to follow thee all the days of our life till we reach that land where thou art the light, and night never comes. In the name of thine only son, our Lord and saviour, Jesus Christ. Amen.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Aldridge and little grand daughter, Debbie Aldridge were in Hazard on business Saturday and of course Debbie got to see old Santa Claus.

Mrs. Stella Brown and Mrs. Pearl Turner were Saturday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Baker.

Mr. Thomas Blankenship had a car wreck last week on the Leatherwood road. Mr. Lindon Napier and Mr. Carl Seales were also in the car but none were seriously injured.

Mr. Blaine Cornett Jr. and Miss Marvellen Blanton were the guest Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Aldridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Woodard were in Hazard, Saturday. Friends, it looks as if old man winter is here for a long visit, so put fuel on the fire, pull up your easy chair, and get set to read the latest edition of The Hazard Herald. If you are not already a subscriber, do not depend on your neighbors paper, but send in your subscription today and don't miss a single issue.

If you wish to subscribe for the Herald at once, see Miss Vicki Aldridge, and she will be proud to get your order and see that you get your paper as soon as possible.

6 Countians Make Lees Honor Roll

Dean Frazier B. Adams today released the names of 47 Lees Junior College students who attained the Dean's List for the second six-weeks term of the first semester. Six of these honored students are from Perry County.

In order to gain mention on the Dean's List at the Jackson college, students must maintain a scholastic standing of "B" for the period.

Perry Countians honored were: Charles W. Baker, Harvinton; Vaughn Duff, Hazard; Joe E. Elrod, Bonnyman; Delbert Fugate, Krypton; Richard Caudill, Fuston; and Nancy Olive Napier, Hazard.

There are 47 Perry Countians currently enrolled at Lees.
